

INT/EXT. CAR - DAY

The driver side car door opens as April gets out. James already walking around the front of the vehicle. "Shady Grove Nursing Home" engraved on a sign just beyond.

April opens the back door.

APRIL

Come on. Granny is gonna be so excited to see you.

ERIC

If she even remembers me.

APRIL

Don't be ugly.

ERIC

Sorry.

Eric hops out of the car. The door slams.

INT. SHADY GROVE COMMON ROOM - DAY

A bland common area, void of anything that resembles comfort or creativity.

Round tables with folding chairs strewn about the room. A TV mounted in the corner blares an episode of "Jerry Springer".

ELDERLY RESIDENTS in various states of activity or inactivity. VISITORS barely interact with the residents, many on phones or tablets. STAFF work around the room.

The family walks in and see GRANNY (80), rosy features, but with a cheerless disposition, staring out a nearby window.

They walk over.

April kneels beside her.

APRIL

Hey, momma.

Granny looks over and smiles.

GRANNY

Jessica. It's so nice of you to come visit me.

APRIL

It's April, mom. You know...

April pulls from her purse an old stuffed bunny rabbit, worn from years of use. She places it in Granny's lap.

The Granny looks down, pets the bunny, and smiles.

GRANNY

My youngest daughter, April had a bunny just like this when she was a little girl.

APRIL

That's right, mom. She did. I brought someone to see you.

Granny doesn't respond, looking longingly out the neighboring window.

GRANNY

Is that little Eric?

The family is surprised she remembers.

GRANNY (CONT.) (CONT'D)

Where have you been hiding? Let me look at you.

Granny pulls Eric over to her and pinches his cheeks.

Eric clearly not enjoying it.

You look just like your mother.
(she looks to April) Where is your sister? She never visits anymore.

APRIL

(to Eric)

Your dad and I need to fill out some paperwork. You stay right here with Granny. Okay?

ERIC

But-

No buts. We'll be right back.

Eric looks to his dad for help.

JAMES

We'll only be a few minutes. Here.

James pulls a small painted MINIATURE WIZARD from his pocket and hands it to Eric.
